8. Do parents get a copy of the games that ninjas create in class?

Absolutely! Parents whose children are enrolled in the CREATE program will receive weekly progress emails containing a comprehensive overview of the levels their child has worked on and the concepts they have learned. These emails will include links to the projects their child has created during the week. At the end of each level, the students will present their final projects, and parents can expect to find a personalized message from our Sensei's providing valuable feedback for their child's growth and development. Ninjas will also be able to continue coding from home with Impact's Sandbox feature where they will be able to create their own story's, video games, and experiment with ninja exploration time.
