Re-organization of Classes

Last Friday teachers reviewed class placements for students returning to face to face instruction from the Blended Learning Program. As a result of this review, the Blended Learning Program was reduced by one division and the Fine Arts Program was increased by one division. Consequently, several combined grade classes in the Fine Arts program will become single grade classes in January. Also, students in Ms. Krenz's Blended Learning class have been reassigned to new classes for January. Classes in the Neighbourhood Program remain unchanged. Ms. McKillop will teach the newly formed Fine Arts class. Ms. Krenz will move to teach the Neighbourhood class formerly taught by Ms. McKillop. On the reverse of this News Bulletin is a list of changes to each division in the school.

Parents of students returning to face to face instruction will be contacted by their current child's teacher regarding their child's placement for January. Parents of students in Ms. Krenz's class who are remaining in the Blended Learning Program will be contacted by Ms. Krenz regarding their placement for January. Students in the Fine Arts Program were notified of the change to their placements by their child's teacher this afternoon.

Mid year changes to teaching assignments and student placements of this magnitude are unprecedented. This process has been difficult for staff. It will also be challenging for many of our students and their families. Teachers have done the best they can, given the circumstances, to minimize the impact to as many students and families as they can. As always, your patience and understanding is greatly appreciated.
